Unseen Passage 1: Valli's Journey

Valli was a curious little girl who lived in a small village. She had often heard about the nearby town from her neighbours and was fascinated by the stories they shared. The town was six miles away, and the fare for the bus ride was thirty paise one way. Valli learned that the journey took about forty-five minutes.

One sunny day, Valli decided to go to the town.

She saved her money and waited for the right moment. Finally, she shouted for the bus to stop when she saw it coming. With excitement, she got on the bus and told the conductor that she wanted to go to the town. She paid her fare and sat by the window, eager to see everything.

When she reached the town, Valli was thrilled to explore. She visited shops, saw many people, and enjoyed her adventure before returning home.
